Character Bible for a New Attack on Titan Reaction Fic

First: the rule that will keep them in character

Each character should react from:

1. What they currently know
2. What they personally care about
3. How they protect themselves emotionally
4. Their relationship with the person on screen

They should not react as fans who already understand the complete story.

For your timeline—around two days before the 57th Expedition—most of the important secrets are still unknown. They do not yet know:

- Annie, Reiner and Bertolt are enemies.
- Ymir is a Titan.
- Christa is Historia Reiss.
- The true royal family is the Reiss family.
- Humanity exists outside the Walls.
- Marley exists.
- Levi is an Ackerman.
- What is inside Eren's basement.
- The complete origin of the Titans.

The first Power to Strive story naturally differentiates them this way: Armin notices logical inconsistencies, Erwin thinks strategically, Hange becomes excited by unexplained phenomena, Levi checks for immediate danger, Petra offers grounded interpretations, and the younger characters react more personally.

1. Petra Ral

Her function in the reaction room

The emotional translator and practical observer.

Petra connects the older officers with the cadets. She understands military thinking, but she is warmer and easier for the younger characters to approach than Levi, Hange or Erwin.

She should not only comfort people. She is an experienced Scout and should also make tactical observations.

What Petra notices

- Whether someone on screen is behaving like a trained soldier.
- Problems with formations, discipline, equipment or teamwork.
- When someone in the room is becoming overwhelmed.
- What Levi means beneath his rude wording.
- The emotional consequences of Erwin's plans.
- Details that could endanger Squad Levi.

In Power to Strive II, Petra simultaneously cares for Eren and speculates about how future battles might be changed. She is gentle without becoming passive.

How she speaks

Her voice is:

- Calm
- Respectful
- Direct
- Occasionally playful
- More informal with Levi and Eren than with Erwin

She rarely gives dramatic speeches. Her strongest lines are often simple observations.

Typical Petra lines

> "That hasn't happened yet. We still have time to prevent it."
>
> "Captain, I think he understands. Shouting at him again won't help."
>
> "Look at the formation. They weren't expecting an attack from behind."
>
> "Eren, breathe first. Then explain what you saw."

Emotional reactions

Mild surprise: Raises her eyebrows, leans forward, asks a practical question.

Concern: Watches the person beside her instead of the television.

Anger: Her voice becomes colder and more formal.

Grief: Becomes quiet, holds herself very still, focuses on helping someone else.

Extreme distress: May lose her professional composure briefly, especially when watching her squad die.

Best dynamics

- Levi: Understands his commands and translates his intentions.
- Eren: Older-sister or mentor energy.
- Hange: Amused but sometimes exhausted by them.
- Erwin: Respectful, but capable of noticing the human cost of his decisions.
- Mikasa: Mutual respect mixed with occasional tension over Eren.
- Jean: Petra may recognize his leadership potential before he does.

Avoid

Do not make Petra:

- Agree with Levi about everything.
- Exist only to comfort Eren.
- Constantly blush around Levi.
- Naive about death.
- Too emotionally fragile to discuss strategy.

---

2. Erwin Smith

His function in the reaction room

The organizer of meaning.

Erwin does not merely react to what happened. He asks:

- Why was this shown?
- What does it reveal?
- Who benefits?
- Can it be changed?
- What must remain unchanged temporarily?
- What information can safely be shared?

When the others see a tragedy, Erwin sees both the tragedy and its military implications.

What Erwin notices

- Political motives.

- Missing information.
- Changes in command structure.
- Enemy objectives.
- Whether Candy is manipulating the order of the episodes.
- Which characters possess information they should not have.
- How the future can be changed without losing useful knowledge.

In the source, he is intrigued by Candy's offer almost immediately and later organizes future information into concrete plans.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Controlled
- Precise
- Calm
- Formal without sounding robotic
- Rarely vulgar
- More likely to ask a question than state an emotional reaction

Typical Erwin lines

> "Pause it. There is something we have overlooked."
>
> "Assuming the events are accurate, the enemy already knows more about us than we know about them."
>
> "Eren, I am not questioning your intentions. I am asking whether you understood the consequence."
>
> "We cannot prevent every death shown to us. We must determine which changes preserve the greatest number of lives."

Emotional reactions

Surprise: Becomes silent and studies the screen.

Interest: Leans forward, asks for the scene to be replayed.

Anger: Voice becomes quieter rather than louder.

Guilt: Redirects attention toward planning.

Fear for Levi: Watches Levi before anyone else and may become unusually decisive.

Deep emotional injury: His composure remains, but his internal thoughts become harsher and more self-accusing.

Best dynamics

- Levi: Communicate through brief looks and incomplete sentences.
- Hange: Encourages their ideas but keeps them focused.
- Armin: Recognizes his intelligence and tests his reasoning.
- Jean: Sees leadership potential.
- Eren: Treats him as both a strategic asset and a young soldier.
- Petra: Trusts her practical judgment.

Your Erwin/Levi AU

Because Erwin and Levi are in love, Erwin should not suddenly become openly romantic in the room.

His love appears through:

- Knowing exactly when Levi is physically uncomfortable.
- Watching Levi's hands, injuries or breathing.
- Giving Levi choices he does not offer others.
- Becoming more formal when his feelings are exposed.
- Intervening when Levi is being emotionally cornered.
- Quietly fearing that confessing would influence Levi's loyalty or judgment.

He understands that he loves Levi. His problem is not confusion; it is fear, guilt and restraint.

Avoid

Do not make Erwin:

- Emotionless.
- Correct about everything.
- Constantly manipulate everyone for entertainment.
- Reveal every plan immediately.
- Become openly jealous in front of the cadets.
- Speak like a philosopher in every reaction.

---

3. Hange Zoë

Their function in the reaction room

The generator of questions, theories and emotional chaos.

Hange keeps the reactions energetic. They can transform a five-second visual detail into three theories, two experiments and an argument with Levi.

However, Hange must not be reduced to “Titan-crazy comic relief.” They are a commander, scientist and experienced soldier.

What Hange notices

- Titan biology.
- Transformation conditions.
- Regeneration.
- Unusual behavior.
- Technology.
- Scientific inconsistencies.
- Anything that could be tested.
- Changes in Eren or Ymir’s Titan forms.
- Emotional behavior that interests them.

In Power to Strive II, Hange arrives with a notebook and continues analyzing Titan-shifters even after learning that Titans were once human.

How they speak

Their voice changes rapidly:

- Excited and fast during discoveries.
- Dramatic and playful during jokes.
- Sharp and frightening when confronting cruelty or concealed information.
- Surprisingly gentle when they realize they have crossed a line.

Typical Hange lines

> “Wait—pause it! Did anyone see the steam change direction?”
>
> “That is horrifying. Also scientifically fascinating. Mostly horrifying. Write that down.”
>
> “Levi, don’t glare at me. You were wondering the same thing.”
>
> “Erwin, theoretically speaking, how angry would you be if I tested that?”

Emotional reactions

Interest: Moves closer to the screen and starts talking quickly.

Fear: Often becomes even more analytical.

Anger: Humor disappears completely.

Grief: May become unusually quiet before covering it with activity.

Embarrassment: Laughs and redirects attention.

Best dynamics

- Levi: Constant teasing, old familiarity and genuine trust.
- Erwin: Intellectual partnership; Erwin structures Hange's ideas.
- Petra: Petra gently stops Hange from overwhelming someone.
- Armin: Hange loves hearing his theories.
- Eren: Fascination mixed with real concern.
- Sasha and Connie: They encourage Hange's jokes, sometimes disastrously.

Erwin/Levi AU role

Hange notices their attachment before almost everyone else.

They may:

- Test them with jokes.
- Watch their automatic reactions.
- Become serious if the room mocks Levi's emotional limitations.
- Protect their privacy when the joke stops being harmless.
- Know that Erwin's restraint is hurting both of them.

Avoid

Do not make Hange:

- Shout in every scene.
- Ignore human suffering because Titans are interesting.
- Experiment without any ethical awareness.
- Understand emotions perfectly.
- Interrupt every serious moment with a joke.

---

4. Levi Ackerman

His function in the reaction room

The practical reality check.

Levi asks:

- Who dies?
- Why did they hesitate?
- What mistake was made?
- Could that strategy work?
- Is the enemy still a threat?
- What can actually be changed?

His comments are usually brief. He should not explain his entire emotional state aloud.

What Levi notices

- Body positioning.
- Hesitation.
- Combat mistakes.
- Injuries.
- Lies.
- Threats to Erwin.
- Threats to his squad.
- Whether someone is emotionally losing control.
- Whether a plan depends too much on luck.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Blunt
- Dry
- Vulgar when irritated
- Economical
- Sarcastic
- Sometimes unintentionally cruel

Typical Levi lines

> “You hesitated. That’s why he died.”
>
> “Stop blaming yourself and pay attention. Guilt won’t change the scene.”
>
> “That plan is shit. Unfortunately, it’s the best one we have.”
>
> “Sit down, Eren. Punching the television won’t kill anyone inside it.”

Emotional reactions

Amusement: Small smirk, snort or insult.

Concern: Gives an order disguised as criticism.

Anger: Becomes still and speaks very quietly.

Grief: Says little, focuses on what should be done next.

Fear for Erwin: Moves automatically, places himself between Erwin and danger, or interrupts before thinking.

Emotional exposure: Becomes irritable and rejects the language being used.

Your AU interpretation

Levi is not emotionally empty. He has gaps in how he names and understands emotion.

He may understand:

- “I choose Erwin.”
- “I trust him.”
- “His life matters.”
- “I would rather be beside him.”
- “I don’t want him to die.”

But he may not naturally translate those feelings into:

- Romantic love
- Emotional dependency
- Jealousy
- Grief anticipation
- Vulnerability

To Levi, his attachment may feel obvious and practical rather than romantic.

When someone calls it love, his response should be closer to confusion or irritation than blushing denial:

> “Call it whatever you want. It changes nothing.”

Best dynamics

- Erwin: Silent trust, tension and automatic protection.
- Hange: Hostile-sounding friendship.
- Petra: Professional trust and subtle protectiveness.
- Mikasa: Mirrored personalities; conflict over authority and Eren.
- Eren: Harsh mentorship.
- Ymir: Mutual bluntness and unwilling respect.
- Armin: Levi listens when Armin proves his reasoning.
- Jean: Recognizes his practical judgment.

Avoid

Do not make Levi:

- Insult people every sentence.
- Enjoy cruelty.
- Constantly threaten to kill everyone.
- Become openly affectionate because he is in love.
- Completely incapable of understanding care.
- Speak in long emotional monologues.
- Obsess only over cleaning.

---

5. Ymir

Her function in the reaction room

The detector of hypocrisy and hidden feelings.

Ymir says what everyone else is avoiding. She understands performance, shame and false identities better than most of the room.

She often reacts to the emotional meaning before the tactical meaning.

What Ymir notices

- When Historia is pretending.
- When someone is acting selfless for selfish reasons.
- When someone is lying to themselves.
- Unspoken attraction.
- Martyr complexes.
- Class prejudice and religious manipulation.
- Situations that resemble her own past.

How she speaks

Her voice is:

- Sarcastic
- Provocative
- Informal
- Emotionally sharp
- Surprisingly gentle with Historia

Typical Ymir lines

> “So we’re all going to pretend that wasn’t painfully obvious?”
>
> “You don’t want to save everyone. You want to die while they’re praising you.”
>
> “Relax, horseface. I said your idea was stupid, not completely useless.”
>
> “Christa, you don’t have to smile just because everyone’s looking at you.”

Emotional reactions

Amusement: Smirks and attacks someone’s pride.

Suspicion: Becomes quieter and watches closely.

Concern for Historia: Immediately protective, sometimes aggressive.

Personal exposure: Uses harsher sarcasm.

Grief: Turns away, avoids comfort or makes a bitter joke.

Best dynamics

- Historia: Softest and most emotionally honest relationship.
- Jean: Competitive insults.
- Eren: Shared stubbornness and Titan-related tension.
- Levi: Blunt mutual recognition.
- Mikasa: Ymir may challenge her fixation on Eren.
- Armin: Respects his mind but may accuse him of overthinking.
- Hange: Wary of becoming an experiment.

Erwin/Levi AU role

Ymir will notice their attachment and may weaponize the observation when annoyed.

However, she should not immediately announce everything. She understands the danger of exposing a vulnerable secret.

Her comments may be indirect:

> “Funny. The Captain doesn’t move that fast for just anyone.”

Avoid

Do not make Ymir:

- Cruel to Historia for entertainment.
- Sarcastic in every line.
- Publicly reveal her Titan identity without pressure.
- Completely selfish.
- Openly sentimental with everyone.
- Automatically understand every secret.

---

6. Historia / Christa

Her function in the reaction room

The emotional conscience and evolving identity.

At the beginning, she is still performing “Christa”: kind, agreeable and self-sacrificing.

As the story continues, the reactions should gradually reveal Historia underneath.

What she notices

- Who is suffering quietly.
- Whether a person has been treated unfairly.
- Children and civilians.
- Loneliness.
- Rejection.
- Ymir’s emotional state.
- Situations involving parents, names or belonging.

How she speaks

As Christa:

- Gentle
- Apologetic
- Encouraging
- Avoids disagreement
- Frequently asks whether others are okay

As Historia emerges:

- More direct
- More passionate
- Less concerned with appearing sweet
- Willing to become angry

- Defends her choices

Typical lines

Christa:

> “Maybe we should let him have a moment.”
>
> “I’m sure there must be another explanation.”

Historia:

> “No. You don’t get to decide what her life was worth.”
>
> “I’m tired of everyone telling me who I am supposed to be.”

Emotional reactions

Concern: Reaches for Ymir or speaks softly.

Fear: Tries to remain useful.

Anger: Initially suppressed; later becomes unexpectedly fierce.

Identity reveal: May freeze, dissociate or feel exposed rather than immediately becoming confident.

Best dynamics

- Ymir: Central emotional anchor.
- Sasha and Connie: Comfortable, ordinary friendship.
- Petra: Safe older-sister presence.
- Eren: Shared issues involving parents and imposed identities.
- Armin: Gentle intellectual connection.
- Erwin: Uneasy once royal and political questions emerge.

Avoid

Do not make Historia:

- Innocent to the point of stupidity.
- Agree with everyone.
- Cry in every difficult scene.
- Immediately embrace being royal.
- Exist only as Ymir’s love interest.
- Become fully assertive in a single chapter.

---

7. Sasha Blouse

Her function in the reaction room

The instinctive observer and tension-breaker.

Sasha provides humor, but she is also highly alert. She may notice sounds, movements or physical danger before the others.

What Sasha notices

- Food.
- Strange sounds.
- Hunting behavior.
- Rural environments.
- Animals.
- Whether someone looks hungry or exhausted.
- Threats to children or families.
- Practical survival possibilities.

How she speaks

Her voice is:

- Polite when nervous
- Blunt when comfortable
- Occasionally strange
- More perceptive than others expect

Typical Sasha lines

> “I don’t like that music. Something terrible always happens when the music changes.”
>
> “That village is too quiet.”
>
> “Can we discuss this while eating? I think better when I’m eating.”
>
> “That wasn’t cowardice. She was trying to get the child away first.”

Emotional reactions

Fear: Says it openly.

Comedy: Uses food or exaggerated predictions.

Serious danger: Becomes focused and competent.

Grief: Loses her appetite—a useful sign that something is deeply wrong.

Best dynamics

- Connie: Comic partnership.
- Jean: He scolds her; she embarrasses him.
- Historia: Warm friendship.
- Ymir: Ymir teases her, but Sasha sometimes surprises her.
- Petra: Respects her as a veteran.
- Hange: Dangerous comedic combination.

Avoid

Do not make Sasha:

- Talk only about food.
- Fail to understand serious conversations.
- Be cowardly.
- Interrupt every death with a joke.
- Use extremely formal speech constantly once comfortable.

---

8. Connie Springer

His function in the reaction room

The ordinary-person perspective.

Connie asks the question a reader may also be thinking. His confusion can force Armin or Erwin to explain complicated discoveries naturally.

What Connie notices

- Familiar people.
- Changes in friends' behavior.
- Contradictions that are socially obvious.
- Villages and families.
- Anything visually bizarre.
- Whether tension needs to be broken.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Casual
- Direct
- Sometimes tactless
- Emotionally transparent
- Quick to joke

Typical Connie lines

> “Wait. Are we saying the Wall is made of Titans?”
>
> “I understood about half of that.”
>
> “Can somebody explain it without using commander words?”
>
> “That isn’t funny. His family was there.”

Emotional reactions

Confusion: Asks directly.

Fear: Jokes or looks to Sasha.

Anger: Becomes more serious and straightforward.

Family-related revelation: Humor disappears completely.

Betrayal: Has difficulty accepting evidence about people he trusted.

Best dynamics

- Sasha: Shared jokes and mutual emotional support.
- Jean: Teasing friendship.
- Eren: Friendly mockery.
- Armin: Asks him for explanations.
- Ymir: She calls him stupid; he occasionally surprises her.
- Historia: Protective friendship.

Avoid

Do not make Connie:

- Completely unintelligent.
- Forget every explanation.

- Treat all tragedies as jokes.
- Speak like a small child.
- Have no opinions of his own.

---

9. Jean Kirstein

His function in the reaction room

The skeptical realist and moral challenger.

Jean questions reckless plans, unfair sacrifices and heroic speeches. He is useful because he can disagree with Eren without being an enemy.

What Jean notices

- Whether a plan is realistic.
- Who is being sacrificed.
- Leadership decisions.
- Public perception.
- Eren's recklessness.
- Mikasa's bias toward Eren.
- Armin's distress.
- His own embarrassing behavior on screen.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Sarcastic
- Defensive
- Practical
- Easily embarrassed
- More compassionate than he admits

Typical Jean lines

> "That isn't a plan. That's charging forward and hoping the Titans cooperate."
>
> "For once, could you think before trying to get yourself killed?"
>
> "Armin, you don't have to justify it. You saved my life."
>
> "I'm not saying we abandon him. I'm saying we stop pretending there's no risk."

Emotional reactions

Embarrassment: Shouts, denies or attacks Eren.

Fear: Becomes sarcastic.

Moral conflict: Asks difficult questions.

Guilt: Blames himself quickly.

Leadership moment: Stops complaining and starts assigning practical actions.

Best dynamics

- Eren: Rivalry hiding mutual respect.
- Armin: Protective friendship.
- Mikasa: Awkward affection, but do not make every scene about his crush.
- Connie and Sasha: Teasing.
- Ymir: Aggressive insult battles.
- Erwin: Jean studies his leadership.
- Levi: Intimidation mixed with growing respect.

Avoid

Do not make Jean:

- Cowardly.
- Obsessed with Mikasa.
- Disagree with Eren about absolutely everything.
- Deliver the correct moral judgment every time.
- Constantly insult others without caring about them.

---

10. Mikasa Ackerman

Her function in the reaction room

The attachment-driven protector.

Mikasa watches the screen, but she also watches Eren's response to the screen.

Her reactions are often physical before verbal:

- Moving closer

- Taking his hand
- Gripping the couch
- Reaching for a weapon
- Positioning herself between him and another person

What Mikasa notices

- Threats to Eren and Armin.
- Whether someone is injured.
- Combat efficiency.
- People failing to protect loved ones.
- Levi's behavior.
- Eren's shame, even when he hides it.
- Details connected to Carla or their childhood.

How she speaks

Her voice is:

- Brief
- Controlled
- Literal
- Cold when angry
- Soft only with a few people

Typical Mikasa lines

> "Eren, sit down."
>
> "He was already injured. Continuing the fight would have killed him."
>
> "You are blaming him for something he has not done yet."
>
> "Captain, explain why you stopped her."

Emotional reactions

Concern: Moves physically closer.

Jealousy or insecurity: Becomes quieter, not comically possessive.

Anger: Voice turns cold; body prepares for action.

Fear of losing Eren: Her control deteriorates.

Carla-related scenes: She and Eren may understand each other without speaking.

Best dynamics

- Eren: Deep love, frustration and mutual misunderstanding.
- Armin: Quieter but equally important family bond.
- Levi: Authority conflict and psychological mirroring.
- Jean: Often dismissive, but she can value his judgment.
- Historia: Protective respect.
- Ymir: Ymir may challenge her attachment to Eren.
- Petra: Possible shared concern for Eren, handled maturely.

Erwin/Levi AU role

Mikasa may recognize Levi's attachment to Erwin because it resembles her own instinct to center one person.

She may understand it before she has the vocabulary or patience to discuss it kindly.

Avoid

Do not make Mikasa:

- Say "Eren" every line.
- Attack anyone who jokes about him.
- Ignore Armin.
- Lack moral or strategic opinions.
- Act like an emotionless machine.
- Become violently jealous over harmless interactions.

---

11. Armin Arlert

His function in the reaction room

The interpreter and theory-builder.

Armin explains how separate clues connect. He should not instantly solve every mystery, but he should generate plausible possibilities.

What Armin notices

- Word choice.
- Timeline inconsistencies.
- Background characters.

- Political implications.
- Enemy psychology.
- Symbolism that might have practical meaning.
- What the camera intentionally hides.
- Why Candy selected certain scenes.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Careful
- Tentative when uncertain
- Increasingly confident when evidence accumulates
- Compassionate
- More frighteningly strategic under pressure

Typical Armin lines

> “I may be wrong, but there is another possibility.”
>
> “The question isn’t only how they entered the Walls. It’s why they waited five years.”
>
> “Candy showed us that scene before the reveal. That may have been intentional.”
>
> “Jean, she hesitated. That is why I fired first.”

Emotional reactions

Curiosity: Talks through his reasoning.

Fear: Thinks faster and lists possibilities.

Guilt: Becomes physically pale or nauseated.

Low self-worth: Compares himself unfavorably with Erwin, Hange or Mikasa.

Recognition: May go silent before explaining a terrifying conclusion.

Best dynamics

- Eren and Mikasa: Emotional family unit.
- Jean: Moral and intellectual partnership.
- Erwin: Mentor-like strategic relationship.
- Hange: Shared curiosity.
- Levi: Armin may be nervous but notices Levi listens when his logic is sound.

- Ymir: She challenges his habit of intellectualizing everything.

Avoid

Do not make Armin:

- Know everything instantly.
- Explain every obvious event.
- Speak in enormous paragraphs during active scenes.
- Be physically helpless in every situation.
- Remain gentle and innocent after every morally difficult choice.
- Always need Eren or Mikasa to defend him.

---

12. Eren Yeager

His function in the reaction room

The emotional engine.

Eren makes the future feel urgent. Where Erwin says, “We need a plan,” Eren says, “We need to stop this.”

His reactions are immediate, physical and personal.

What Eren notices

- Injustice.
- Captivity.
- Cowardice.
- People sacrificing themselves for him.
- His own failures.
- Threats to Mikasa and Armin.
- His father and the basement.
- Anyone treating human beings like animals or tools.

How he speaks

His voice is:

- Direct
- Passionate
- Impatient

- Emotionally honest
- Occasionally rude
- More thoughtful after he calms down

Typical Eren lines

> “Then we change it.”
>
> “Why are we still sitting here? We know where they’ll be!”
>
> “Don’t tell me it wasn’t my fault. They were there because of me.”
>
> “I’m not asking Mikasa to stop caring. I’m asking her to trust me.”

Emotional reactions

Anger: Stands, clenches his fists or argues immediately.

Embarrassment: Becomes defensive and loud.

Guilt: Turns anger inward and promises to become stronger.

Fear: Often disguised as anger.

Grief: May become unexpectedly quiet.

Hope: Becomes almost childlike, especially regarding the sea or freedom.

Best dynamics

- Mikasa: Love and frustration around protection.
- Armin: Shared dream and intellectual trust.
- Jean: Rivalry that pushes both of them.
- Levi: Harsh mentor relationship.
- Petra: Trust and emotional safety.
- Erwin: Admiration mixed with discomfort about sacrifice.
- Ymir: Similar stubbornness and Titan-shifter connection.
- Historia: Shared struggle with inherited expectations.

Avoid

Do not make Eren:

- Angry during every scene.
- Morally certain about everything.
- Hate Levi whenever Levi makes a cruel decision.
- Ignore strategy completely.

- Understand complex political revelations immediately.
- Accept comfort easily.
- Blame others more than he blames himself.

The most useful relationship map

Eren, Mikasa and Armin

They are a family unit, but each one has a different role:

- Eren: Motion and determination.
- Mikasa: Protection and survival.
- Armin: Direction and imagination.

When one is hurt, the other two should react differently. Mikasa moves physically; Armin tries to understand; Eren demands action.

Eren and Jean

Their arguments should contain real ideological differences:

- Eren prioritizes action and freedom.
- Jean prioritizes survival and consequences.

However, they gradually respect each other. Their insults can also be a way of distracting the other from distress.

Sasha and Connie

They are the room's natural comedy pair, but they should also comfort one another when family, home or betrayal is involved.

Ymir and Historia

Their dialogue should have two layers:

- What they say publicly.
- What they understand privately.

Ymir attacks Historia's false self; Historia sees the compassion beneath Ymir's cynicism.

Erwin, Levi, Hange and Petra

They operate as the experienced adult group:

- Erwin: Overall strategy.
- Levi: Immediate practicality.
- Hange: Investigation and possibilities.
- Petra: Human impact and squad-level reality.

They should not agree automatically. Their disagreements should reflect their roles.

How to structure one reaction scene

A strong reaction passage usually needs only three or four active voices, not all twelve.

Example pattern

1. Personal reaction

The character most connected to the scene responds first.

> Eren went still when Carla appeared on the screen.

2. Emotional observer

Someone notices what the first character is feeling.

> Petra quietly placed a glass of water near his hand.

3. Analytical interpretation

Someone explains why the scene matters.

> Armin frowned. “Candy showed us the key twice. It must become important later.”

4. Strategic consequence

A veteran turns the information into a future decision.

> “Then we ensure the basement remains accessible,” Erwin said.

5. Tension release

A joke or argument allows the scene to breathe.

> “Assuming Eren remembers where he put the damn key,” Jean muttered.

This creates a full reaction without making twelve people comment on the same thing.

Who should lead different kinds of scenes?

A battle or tactical failure

Primary voices:

- Levi
- Petra
- Jean
- Erwin
- Mikasa

A Titan mystery

Primary voices:

- Hange
- Armin
- Erwin
- Ymir
- Eren

A betrayal reveal

Primary voices:

- Eren
- Connie
- Jean
- Mikasa
- Ymir

Then Erwin and Armin analyze it after the first emotional shock.

A death

Choose the people closest to the victim. The rest of the room does not need to speak.

Use silence, body language and interrupted sentences.

A political reveal

Primary voices:

- Erwin
- Armin
- Hange
- Jean
- Historia

Levi should focus on what the political information means physically: arrests, assassinations, extraction or protection.

An embarrassing scene

Primary voices:

- Connie
- Sasha
- Jean
- Hange
- Ymir

Levi ends the chaos; Erwin secretly finds it amusing; Petra may try and fail not to laugh.

An Erwin/Levi emotional reveal

A believable order would be:

1. Hange notices first.
2. Petra quietly understands.
3. Ymir makes an indirect remark.
4. Mikasa recognizes the protective pattern.
5. Armin connects the evidence.
6. Jean and Connie realize it later.
7. Eren initially misunderstands the problem.
8. Historia focuses on how lonely both men are.
9. Sasha understands the feeling before understanding the terminology.
10. Levi becomes angry because everyone is making something simple complicated.
11. Erwin becomes controlled and tries to redirect the discussion.

Final voice shortcut

When you are unsure who should say a line, ask:

- Who asks “why?” — Armin
- Who asks “what can we do?” — Erwin
- Who asks “will it work?” — Jean
- Who asks “who dies?” — Levi
- Who asks “how does it work?” — Hange
- Who asks “is everyone okay?” — Petra
- Who says “that’s hypocritical”? — Ymir
- Who asks “why are they suffering?” — Historia
- Who notices danger first? — Sasha
- Who says what everyone is thinking? — Connie
- Who moves to protect someone? — Mikasa
- Who says “then we change it”? — Eren
